The Baptism of the Lord by Fr. Jon Pedigo

This week, we celebrate the Feast of the Baptism of the Lord with Luke's Gospel (Lk 3:15-16, 21-22). As noted in previous articles, John's baptism was grounded in the Jewish ritual of Mikveh. To fully appreciate the significance of Jesus partaking in the Mikveh, we need to understand its origins and meaning within the socio-historical context of First Century CE Israel-Judea.

Many scholars of religion and ritual acknowledge the widespread practice of purity and initiatory water baths across various cultures and religions worldwide. Water rituals signifying purity, preparation for sacred acts, initiation rites, communion with the Divine, and rites of passage are not unique to any one tradition. However, it is crucial to avoid conflating these diverse practices into a single narrative. Each culture's use of water rituals must be considered within its own mythologies, religious narratives, social values, and relationship with nature. For Christians seeking to understand Jesus' baptism, it is essential to examine the context of First Century Jewish ritual practices and the socio-historical framework in which they were performed. (Continued on page 4...)

El Bautismo de Señor por el Padre Jon Pedigo

Esta semana, celebramos la Fiesta del Bautismo del Señor con el Evangelio de Lucas (Lc 3:15-16, 21-22). Como se señaló en artículos anteriores, el bautismo de Juan se basó en el ritual judío del Mikveh. Para apreciar plenamente la importancia de la participación de Jesús en el Mikveh, debemos comprender sus orígenes y significado dentro del contexto socio histórico del siglo primero en Israel-Judea.

*Muchos estudios de la religión y el ritual reconocen la práctica generalizada de los baños de agua de pureza e iniciación en varias culturas y religiones en todo el mundo. Los rituales del agua que significan pureza, preparación para actos sagrados, ritos de iniciación, comunión con lo Divino y ritos de paso no son exclusivos de ninguna tradición. Sin embargo, es crucial evitar mezclar estas diversas prácticas en una sola narrativa. El uso de los rituales del agua en cada cultura debe considerarse dentro de sus propias mitologías, narrativas religiosas, valores sociales y relación con la naturaleza. Para los cristianos que buscan comprender el bautismo de Jesús, es esencial examinar el contexto de las prácticas rituales judías del primer siglo y el marco socio histórico en el que se llevaron a cabo. The Mikveh is deeply rooted in the Torah, where water plays a vital role in the sociopolitical emergence of the Jewish people, purity and ritual, and creation and life:

- Sociopolitical Emergence: Stories such as Abraham, Jacob, and Isaac often highlight water as a crucial resource for survival and covenantal journeys. With Moses, water becomes a symbol of liberation in the Exodus and a marker of the Israelites' passage into the Promised Land.
- Purity and Ritual: The commandments (mitzvot) in Leviticus and Numbers emphasize water's role in maintaining spiritual and ritual purity.
- Creation and Life: Genesis describes water as integral to the creation story, symbolizing life, renewal, and connection to the Divine.

The Mikveh expresses these elements, and to preserve their integrity, specific criteria are required for a proper (kosher) Mikveh:

- The water must be naturally flowing (e.g., rainwater, a spring, or a river), symbolizing its connection to creation and the Divine.
- Full submersion of the individual signifies complete transformation.

A Mikveh was required in various circumstances:

- After childbirth or menstruation: Blood, considered sacred as the bearer of life, required purification after contact.
- Before Temple service: Prior to 70 CE, Temple priests immersed themselves before offering blood sacrifices. This context informs the parable of the Good Samaritan (Lk 10), where ritual purity laws are at play.
- After contact with the dead: This requirement aligns with Jesus' and his disciples' interactions with the dead, such as Jairus' daughter (Lk 8:40ff), the Widow of Nain's son (Lk 7:11ff), and the healing of the possessed man among the tombs (Lk 8:26ff).
- Conversion to Judaism: The Mikveh signifies a rebirth into the covenant with Israel.

The Mikveh fosters personal transformation that carries an ethical demand to engage with the world in a positive way. Those undergoing a Mikveh are called to examine their conscience, acknowledge harm they may have caused, make amends, and commit to Teshuvah (repentance). Entering the Mikveh naked symbolizes vulnerability and equality, emphasizing our shared humanity and connection to God. This ritual awakens a drive to pursue justice, act with kindness, and engage in tikkun olam—the work of repairing the world.

When John the Baptist offered the Mikveh, his audience—including Jesus—would have understood this profound spiritual framework. In Luke's narrative, this understanding is underscored when the Spirit descends upon Jesus, and a voice proclaims, "You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased."

Today, we celebrate not only this sacred moment but also the ongoing transformative work within ourselves, our communities, and the world. How might this call to renewal inspire us to repair relationships, seek justice, and bring healing where it is needed most? As we reflect on this feast, let us consider the ways we are called to restore equity and foster spiritual and social wellness in our own lives.

The SCRIPTURE STUDIES group will be focusing on the Book of Genesis in an eleven-week course starting January 28 and January 30, 2025. The same lesson will be held each week on Tuesday and Thursday at 7 pm. Books can be picked up outside the PAC on Wednesday, January 22, from 6 to 7 pm. The cost for the books will be $25. El Mikveh está profundamente arraigada en la Torá, donde el agua juega un papel vital en el surgimiento sociopolítico del pueblo judío, la pureza y el ritual, y la creación y la vida:

- Surgimiento sociopolítico: Historias como Abraham, Jacob e Isaac a menudo destacan el agua como un recurso crucial para la supervivencia y los viajes de alianza. Con Moisés, el agua se convierte en un símbolo de liberación en el Éxodo y un marcador del paso de los israelitas a la Tierra Prometida.
- Pureza y ritual: Los mandamientos (mitzvot) en Levítico y Números enfatizan el papel del agua en el mantenimiento de la pureza espiritual y ritual.
- Creación y vida: Génesis describe el agua como parte integral de la historia de la creación, simbolizando la vida, la renovación y la conexión con lo Divino.

El Mikveh expresa estos elementos, y para preservar su integridad, se requieren criterios específicos para una Mikveh apropiada (kosher):

- El agua debe fluir naturalmente (por ejemplo, agua de lluvia, un manantial o un río), simbolizando su conexión con la creación y lo Divino.
- La inmersión total del individuo significa una transformación completa.

Se requería una Mikveh en varias circunstancias:

- Después del parto o la menstruación: la sangre, considerada sagrada como portadora de vida, requería purificación después del contacto.
- Antes del servicio del Templo: antes del año 70 d. C., los sacerdotes del Templo se sumergían antes de ofrecer sacrificios de sangre. Este contexto informa la parábola del Buen Samaritano (Lc 10), donde entran en juego las leyes de pureza ritual.
- Después del contacto con los muertos: Este requisito se alinea con las interacciones de Jesús y de sus discípulos con los muertos, como la hija de Jairo (Lc 8:40), el hijo de la viuda de Naín (Lc 7:11), y la curación del hombre poseído entre las tumbas (Lc 8:26).
- Conversión al judaísmo: El Mikveh significa un renacimiento en el pacto con Israel.

El Mikveh fomenta la transformación personal que conlleva una demanda ética de relacionarse con el mundo de una manera positiva. Aquellos que se someten a una Mikveh están llamados a examinar su conciencia, reconocer el daño que pueden haber causado, enmendar y comprometerse con la Teshuvá (arrepentimiento). Entrar a el Mikveh desnudo simboliza la vulnerabilidad y la igualdad, enfatizando nuestra humanidad compartida y la conexión con Dios. Este ritual despierta el impulso de buscar la justicia, actuar con bondad y participar en el tikkun olam, el trabajo de reparar el mundo.

Cuando Juan el Bautista ofreció el Mikveh, su audiencia, incluido Jesús, habría comprendido este profundo marco espiritual. En la narración de Lucas, esta comprensión se subraya cuando el Espíritu desciende sobre Jesús y una voz proclama: "Tú eres mi Hijo amado; en ti tengo complacencia".

Hoy, celebramos no solo este momento sagrado, sino también el trabajo transformador dentro de nosotros mismos, nuestras comunidades y el mundo. ¿Cómo podría este llamado a la renovación inspirarnos a reparar las relaciones, buscar la justicia y llevar la sanación donde más se necesita? Al reflexionar sobre esta fiesta, consideremos las formas en que estamos llamados a restaurar la equidad y fomentar el bienestar espiritual y social en nuestras propias vidas.

SVDP / Outreach Corner Oficina de Servicios Sociales

St. Lucy Conference will be collecting food items at all masses next weekend in support of our outreach mission. The current need is for food items for the unhoused. Because of the generous donations of non-perishable food for the housed during the Christmas Season, we turn our attention to the food needs of the unhoused who visit our office. The most urgent need is for: Fruit cups, Vienna Sausage, Cup of Noodles, Granola and Breakfast Bars. We could also use Peanut Butter cracker packs, Individual snack packages of Trail Mix, Nuts, and Dried Fruit. In addition, we could use Meals in a can such as Chili, Spaghetti, and Ravioli with easy pull tops. The need is greatest during the cold months where those surviving unhoused find themselves more dependent on services.

We look forward to a recap of the giving tree program in February. We do want to thank all of those who participated. It was truly a heart-warming outpouring of generosity, thoughtfulness and compassion. I am sure that Jesus is looking down on this community with love. Thank you for your continued generosity.

La Oficina de Servicios Sociales de Santa Lucía estará recolectando alimentos en todas las misas el próximo fin de semana en apoyo a nuestra misión de extensión. La necesidad actual es de alimentos para las personas sin hogar. La necesidad más urgente es: tazas de frutas, salchichas de Viena, Cup of Noodles, granola y barras. También podríamos usar paquetes de galletas con crema de cacahuete, nueces y frutas secas. Además, podríamos usar comidas enlatadas como espaguetis y raviolos con tapas fáciles de abrir. La necesidad es mayor durante los meses fríos, cuando las personas sin hogar se encuentran más dependientes.

Esperamos un resumen del programa del árbol de dar en febrero. Queremos agradecer a todos los que participaron. Fue realmente una efusión conmovedora de generosidad, consideración y compasión. Estoy seguro de que Jesús mira a esta comunidad con amor. Gracias por su continua generosidad.

Message from the Principal

Dear Parishioners,

As we return to the hustle of life after the holiday season, St. Lucy Parish School students continue to build on their relationship with God every day. Parents partner with faculty and staff to provide experiences and knowledge to help guide and encourage their child to be a follower of Christ. Throughout the year, students participate in religion class and each grade has a specific focus, from learning the importance of the 10 Commandments to the Church's history.

Encouraging students to live their faith is a part of our mission. Service opportunities, religion class, and the time spent celebrating Mass together are all experiences that play a role in a student's faith formation. It warms my heart to hear our students talking about God and Jesus and truly understanding the importance of the Holy Spirit in their lives.

Happy New Year,

Sue Grover
